The Air Force Reserve is specifically involved with training pilots for the Reserve and the Active Duty Air Force. Trainer pilots, who must have an FAA license, prepare the training missions and monitor students' progress from pre-flight checks and understanding weather briefings, to flying the aircraft and operating weapons systems. Training is the hallmark of the Air Force Reserve, and it takes place continually at all bases.

Threat Analysis:

Enemy aircraft MIG-21 and MIG-23 are likely to be operating within operation area. Only engage enemy aircraft if the risk is relatively low. BVR engagement is authorized. Friendly aircraft are operating in the area.
